

NAVAL HOLIDAY PROPOSED BY U. S.

Opening of Conference on the Limitation of Armament

SUSPENSION OF BUILDING

American Secretary Of State Hughes Outlines Definite Plan For Curtailement Of Sea
Forces.

Washington.—The United States, at the opening of the Conference, proposed to the world that a naval holiday be declared for the next 10 years. During that time this Government believes there should be no further construction of capital ships.

The American program for the limitation of naval armament was presented to The Conference on the Limitation of Armament by Secretary of State Hughes, head of the American delegation. It provides:

1. That all capital shipbuilding programs, either actual or projected, should be abandoned.
2. That further reduction should be made through the scrapping of certain of the older ships.
3. That in general regard should be held to the existing naval strength of the powers concerned.
4. That the capital ship tonnage should be used as the measurement of strength for navies and a proportionate allowance of auxiliary combatant craft prescribed.

Hughes surprised the Conference by presenting a concrete proposition for arms limitation when he accepted its chairmanship. He emphasized that there is need to take immediate action on arms limitation.

"It would also seem to be a vital part of a plan for the limitation of naval armament that there should be a naval holiday," Hughes said. "It is proposed that for a period of not less than 10 years there should be no further construction of capital ships."

"I am happy to say that I am at liberty to go beyond these general propositions, and on behalf of the American delegation, acting under the instructions of the President to submit to you a concrete proposition for an agreement for the limitation of naval armament."

"It should be added that this proposal immediately concerns the British Empire, Japan and the United States. In view of the extraordinary conditions due to the World War affecting the existing strength of the navies of France and Italy, it is not thought to be necessary to discuss at this stage of the proceedings the tonnage allowance of these nations. But the United States proposes that this matter be reserved for the consideration of the Conference."

"In making the present proposal the United States is most solicitous to deal with the question upon an entirely reasonable and practical basis, to the end that the just interests of all shall be adequately guarded, and that national security and defense shall be maintained."

Gives Plan In Detail.

Hughes outlined then how the American delegation believes the naval armament of the world should be made, giving in detail just what this Government believes each nation should agree to.

The principal features of the proposed agreement, in the words of Hughes, are as follows:

CAPITAL SHIPS

The United States is now completing its program of 1916, calling for 10 new battleships and six battle ships and six battle cruisers. One battle ship has been completed. The others are in various stages of construction. In some cases from 60 to more than 80 per cent. of the construction has been done. On these 15 capital ships now being built more than $330,000,000 has been spent. Still the United States is willing, in the interest of an immediate limitation of naval armament to scrap all these ships.

The United States proposes, if this plan is accepted—

- (1) To scrap all capital ships now under construction. This includes six battle cruisers and seven battleships on the ways, and in course of building. The total number of new capital ships thus to be scrapped is 15. The total tonnage of the new capital ships if completed would be 618,000 tons.
2. To scrap all of the older battleships up to, but not including, the Delaware and North Dakota. The number of these old battleships to be scrapped is 15. Their total tonnage is 227,740 tons.

Thus the number of capital ships to be scrapped by the United States, if this plan is accepted, is 30, with an aggregate tonnage (including that of ships in construction if completed) of 845,740 tons.

GREAT BRITAIN AND JAPAN

The plan contemplates that Great Britain and Japan shall take action which is fairly commensurate with this action on the part of the United States.

1. It is proposed that Great Britain—
1. Shall stop further construction of the four new hoods, the new capital ships not laid down but upon which money has been spent. These four ships, if completed, would have tonnage displacement of 172,000 tons.

2. Shall, in addition, scrap her pre-dreadnaughts, second-line battleships and first-line battleships up to but not including the King George V class.

These, with certain pre-dreadnaughts which already have been scrapped, would amount to 18 capital ships and a tonnage reduction of 411,375 tons.

The total tonnage of ships thus to be scrapped by Great Britain (including the tonnage of the four hoods, if completed), would be 583,375 tons.

JAPAN

It is proposed that Japan—

1. Shall abandon her program of ships not yet laid down, viz., the Kii, Owari, No. 7 and No. 8 battleships and Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 battle cruisers.

It should be observed this does not involve the stopping of construction, as the construction of none of these ships has been begun.

2. Shall scrap three capital ships (the Mutsu, launched; the Tosa and Kago, in course of building), and four battle cruisers (the Amagi and Akagi, in the course of building, and the Toga and Takao, not yet laid down but for which certain material has been assembled).

The total number of new capital ships to be scrapped under this paragraph is seven. The total tonnage of these new capital ships when completed would be 289,100 tons.

3. Shall scrap all pre-dreadnaughts and battleships of the second line. This would include the scrapping of all ships up to but not including the Settsu—that is, the scrapping of 10 older ships, with a total tonnage of 159,828 tons.

John W. Garrett, of Baltimore, was elected secretary-general of the Conference.

FRENCH PRESS IS SKEPTICAL

Takes Attitude Conference Is Purely For Pacific Problems.

Paris.—The French press was crammed with news of the opening of the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, although it is boldly stated that little hope is held for "anything real toward disarmament."

The attitude has been taken here that the meeting is exclusively a Pacific problem affair.

Editorially, confidence was expressed in most Paris newspapers that Washington would not repeat the mistake of Versailles in seeking for ideal solutions.

OPPOSED TO BATTLESHIPS.

British Admiral Views Their Advocates
As Lunatics.

London.—Rear-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, former commander of the aerial defenses at London, and an avowed opponent of big battleships, writing in the Times, remarks that the main feature of Secretary Hughes' proposals is whether battleships are to be built or not.

"I regard advocates of wasting money on battleships as lunatics," declared Sir Percy. "Why is the country's purpose controlled by lunatics? For the ships it proposes to build will cost £100,000,000. The Government say this will give employment. So would the building of roads and of railways."

DISMISSED FOR USING POWDER.

Miss Pearl Pugsley, Of Arkansas, Asks
For Her Rights.

Knobles, Ark.—A writ of mandamus asking that she "be restored to her rights in the public schools" has been filed here by Miss Pearl Pugsley, aged 18, who claims she was dismissed for using face powder. Early this year the School Board issued a statement that no face powders, cosmetics, rouges, peekaboo waists, thin stockings or abbreviated skirts would be tolerated in the schools.

YALE GIVES FOCH DEGREE.

French Marshal Will Attend Football Game With Princeton.

New Haven, Conn.—Marshal Foch received the degree of doctor of laws from Yale University. The Marshal was received by Governor Lake and other dignitaries under a specially constructed field tent at the railway station upon his arrival. Foch will attend the Yale-Princeton football game.

REPORTS REVOLT IN RUSSIA

Counter-Revolution.

London.—Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replying to a question in the House of Commons, stated the Government had received a report that an anti-Bolshevik revolution had broken out in the south-western part of Russia. He said no information had been received regarding a report that General Petlura, Ukrainian leader, was engineering the revolution from Rumania.

FOUR MEXICANS KILLED.

UNKNOWN SOLDIER PLACED IN SHRINE

Every Civilized Country Joins
in Paying Honor to Warrior

NATIONS BOW IN REVERENCE

Simplicity Marks Event—President
Harding and Wilson Lead In Historic Demonstration Of National Mourning.

Washington.—With the body of an unknown soldier the American people Friday consecrated an immortal symbol to the tragedies of war.

Saturday, within plain sight of his tomb, which at historic Arlington will forever mark the illustrious deeds of American valor, the representatives of the leading armed nations of the world will begin building a foundation for perpetual peace.

Today the American people bowed in reverence before the body of the unidentified warrior and paid loving tribute to the heroism of every American soldier in the great World War.

Heroism Forever Enshrined.

Tonight, with his heroism forever enshrined in their hearts, they were celebrating in word and song, under the glare of jeweled lights, reflected in the skies the third anniversary of the coming of peace and praying that never again will the world require such sacrifices as those that brought him to his hallowed resting place.

The American Capital, long accustomed to military pageants and official ceremonies, never provided one that approached in somber and magnificent impressiveness and joyous acclaim the two phases of its most historic day. The features that appealed most strongly to the mind and heart were the beauty and simplicity of both, the deep well of sentiment plumbied by the words of tearful and grateful acknowledgment of the courage and patriotism of all Americans who gave their lives that the world might be saved and the joyous popular demonstration of heartfelt thanks for escape of the horrors of war.

Interment Impressive.

Of the two spectacles, that which characterized the interment of the Unknown Soldier in the soil of the beloved country for which he had made the supreme sacrifice, will cling forever in the American mind and heart.

Following his flag-draped, flower-crested casket mounted on a gun carriage, flanked by living heroes of the World War, walked the President of the world, stalwart, alert, but with head bowed in genuine mourning for the martyred dead.

Seated in a carriage, his face and figure reflecting the ravages caused by the great world conflict, rode the former President and commander-in-chief of the armies in which the unidentified warrior helped hold aloft the most beautiful flag in the world and point the way to victory.

Nations Join In Tribute.

With measured step, the full membership of the greatest legal tribunal in the world and of the most representative legislative body grieved with them. The leading men of the nation famed in industry and the arts, the most celebrated soldiers, sailors and diplomats of every civilized nation in the world, pathetic groups of gold-star mothers, each wondering if the Unknown Hero were her boy, the crippled and drawn-faced victims of the devastating devices of war, and great crowds of men, women and children, all added their word of praise for the Unknown One.

Who, or what he was in life was of no moment—white, black, saffron or brown—who knows? He might have been a ruddy-cheeked boy from the Green Mountains of Vermont; a gunman from the Eastside of New York; a cowboy from the Texas ranges; a friendless outcast; an Indian from the Dakotas; one of the Latin strain from the far-flung Philippines, or Porto Rico; a rugged mountaineer from the Rockies or the Tennessee hills—perhaps a citizen of African origin.

Harding Voices Tribute.

There was no thought of the identity in life. That will never be known. The greatest and humblest of citizens, bowed in reverent devotion before his dead body, thought of him only as a patriot, who had surrendered his life for his country. Every incident that characterized the ceremonial culminating in eulogy of deeds—the decoration of his poor lifeless body with the most valued testimonials of courage of his own country, Great Britain, France, Italy, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Poland; the tear-stained wreaths of an American and a British mother and the odd war bonnet and coup sticks of the Indian races of America—served to emphasize this declaration by the President of the United States in sounding the final tribute to the value of the great services performed by him.

"Today's ceremonies proclaim that the Unknown is not unknown. We gather him to the nation's breast within the shadow of the Capitol and of the towering shaft that honors Washington, the great father, and the exquisite monument to Lincoln, the

JURY INDICTS TOTAL OF 50.

Many Danville Men Given Option Of Leaving City.

Danville, Va.—The grand jury of the Corporation Court adjourned Friday afternoon, after bringing in 15 indictments against men of this city charged with being "not of good fame."

martyred savior. Here the inspirations of yesterday and the conscience of today forever unite to make the republic worthy of his sacrifice for flag and country.

"Ours are lofty resolutions today as, with tribute to the dead, we consecrate ourselves to a better order for the living. With all my heart I wish that we might say to the defenders that survive, the mothers who sorrow to widows and children who mourn that no such sacrifice shall ever be asked again."

More Than 75,000 Present.

These impressive words of the Commander-in-Chief of the American land and sea forces, but more eager to be remembered for his ambition to make future wars impossible, were carried beyond the beautiful marble amphitheatre in which they were spoken, over the flower-heaped casket of the Unknown Soldier, to more than 75,000 men, women and children, gathered in picturesque groups on the brown Virginia slopes looking over the reaches of the murky Potomac upon the American capital. There was no applause, though the words of the President, uttered with great emotion, merited it.

GREETINGS FOR ITALIAN KING.

Congratulations Sent Him On His 52d Birthday.

Washington.—Friday being the fifty-second birthday of King Victor Emmanuel, Senator Rolandi Ricci, Italian Ambassador, and Senator Schanzer, president of the Italian delegation to the Armament Conference, sent him messages of congratulations.

The Italian delegation considered it a good omen that the inauguration of the Conference should so nearly coincide with the birthday of a King, who is pointed out as one of the sovereigns who since the beginning of this century have left nothing unattempted to maintain peace and to strengthen the feeling of friendship among nations.

KENTUCKIAN KILLED IN FIGHT.

Two Others Probably are Fatally Wounded In Gun Battle.

The hike is the upshot of a wager between MacDonald and W. R. Howard, president of the Argentina Racing Company. According to its terms, the ambitious pedestrian will be permitted to carry only a sporting rifle for self protection, although his route lies through lands infested with savage natives.

Highways and Talkways

The first improved highway in America is said to have been built in 1794 and this was the beginning of the good roads movement that has spread from coast to coast.

Good roads are essential to the prosperity and progress of this community. Ribbons of hard surfaced highways must tie it to the great outside world.

In the same manner the men and women of the Bell System—many of them your neighbors—are maintaining "talkways" not alone to the homes and business houses in this community but also to every other community in the United States.

Glistening bands of copper stretch from your door to every corner of the country making "talk travel" possible, without regard to season, weather, or road conditions.

DERELICT RICHLY LADEN.

Synopsis.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from mess boy on a river steamer, risen to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weatherbeaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable, but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper, Nels Halvorsen, a solemn Swede, constitutes the forecastle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney type, reigns in the engine room. With this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden truck from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens; the Maggie goes ashore in a fog. A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing company in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog. Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Fishery, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the identity of the "Yankee Prince" and, fearing ridicule should the facts become known along the water front, determine on personal vengeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer. Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promises and Gibney and McGuffey "strike." With marvelous luck, Scraggs ships a fresh crew. At the end of a few days of wild conviviality Gibney and McGuffey are stranded and seek their old positions on the Maggie. They are hostily received, but remain. On their way to San Francisco they sight a derelict.

CHAPTER V—Continued.

"Spoken like a man—I do not think. Scraggs, for once in my life I have you where the hair is short. I'm willin' to dig in an' help out in a pinch, but it's gettin' so me an' Mac can't trust you no more. We're that leery of you we won't take your word for nothin', since you fooled him on the new boiler an' me on the paint; consequently, we're off you an' this salvage job unless you give us a clear-ance, in writin', statin' that we are not an' never was pirates, that we're good, law-abidin' citizens an' aboard the Maggie as your guests, takin' the trip at our own risk. When you sign such a paper, with your crew for witnesses, I'll demonstrate how that bark can be salvaged. My imagination's better'n my reputation, Scraggs, an' I ain't workin' it for nothin'!"

"Gib, my dear boy. You're the most sensitive man I ever sailed with. Can't you take a little joke?"

"Sure, I can take a little joke. It's the big ones that stick in my craw an' stifle my friendship. Gimme a fountain pen an' a leaf out o' the log book an' I'll draw up the affidavit for your signature."

Scraggs complied precipitately with this request, whereupon Mr. Gibney spread his great bulk over the chart case and with many a twist and flip of his tongue on the up and down strokes, produced this remarkable document:

"At Sea, Off Point Montara,

"Aboard S. S. Maggie,

"of San Francisco,

"June 4, 19—

"This is to certify that A. P. Gibney, Esq., and Bart McGuffey, Esq., is law-abidin' citizens of the U. S. A. and the constitution thereof, and in no way pirates or such; and be it further resolved that the said parties hereto are aboard said American steamer Maggie this date on the special invite of Phineas P. Scraggs, owner, as his guests and at their own risk.

"Witness my hand and seal."

Captain Scraggs signed without reading and the new mate and Nels Halvorsen appended their signatures as witnesses. Mr. Gibney thereupon folded this clearance paper into the tiniest possible compact ball, wrapped it in a piece of tinfoil torn from a package of tobacco, to protect it from his saliva, tucked it in his cheek and with a sign for McGuffey to follow him, started crawling over the cargo aft. By this time the Maggie was within a hundred yards of the distressed bark and was watching slowly backward and forward before her.

"In all my born days," quoth Mr. Gibney, speaking a trifle thickly because of the document in his mouth. "I never got such a wallop as Scraggs handed me an' you last night. I don't forget things like that in a hurry. Now that we got a vindication of the charge of piracy again us, I'm achin' to get shot of the Maggie an' her crew; so if you'll kindly peel off all of your clothes with the exception, say, of your underdrawers, we'll swim off to that bark an' give Phineas P. Scraggs an exhibition of real sailorizin' an' seamanship."

"What's the big idee?" McGuffey demanded cautiously.

"Why, we sail her in ourselves—me an' you an' glom all the salvage for ourselves. T'ell with Scraggs an' the Maggie an' that new mate an' engineer. I'm off'n 'em for life."

Pop-eyed with excitement and interest, B. McGuffey, Esquire, stood up, and with a single twist shed his cap and coat. His shirts followed. Both he and Gibney were already minus their shoes and socks. To slip out of their faded dungarees was the work of an instant. Strapping their belts around their waists to hold up their drawers, the worthy pair stepped to the rail of the Maggie.

"Hey, there? Where you goin', Gib? I give you that clearance paper on condition that you was to tell me how to salvage that there bark."

"I'm just about to tell you, Scraggs. You don't touch a thing aboard the Maggie. You leave her out of it entirely. You just jump overboard, like me an' Mac will in a jiffy, swim over to the bark, climb aboard, and sail her in to San Francisco bay. When you get there you drop anchor an' call it a day's work." He grinned broadly. "One o' these bright days, Scraggs, when me an' Mac is just wallerin' in salvage money, drop around to see us an' we'll give you a kick in the face. Farewell, you boobies," and he dove overboard.

"Ta-ta," McGuffey cried in his tantalizing falsetto voice, and followed his leader into the briny deep.

CHAPTER VI.

The tide was still at the flood and the two adventurers made fast progress toward the Chesapeake. Choosing a favorable opportunity as the vessel dipped, they grasped her martingale, climbed up on the bowsprit, and ran along the bowsprit to the to-gallan-fo-castle. On the deck below a dead man lay in the scuppers, and such a horrible stench pervaded the vessel that McGuffey was taken very ill and was forced to seek the rail.

"Scurvy or somethin'," Mr. Gibney announced, quite calmly. "There should be chloride of lime in the mate's store-room—I'll scatter some on these poor devils. Too close to port now to chuck 'em overboard. Anyhow, Bart, me an' you ain't doctors, nor yet cornerers or undertakers, so you'd better skip along an' build a fire under the donkey aft. Matches in the galley, of course."

He trotted down to the main deck and prowled aft. On the port side of her house he found two more dead men, and a cursory inspection of the bodies told him they had died of scurvy. He circled the ship, came back to the fo-castle, entered, and found four men alive in their berths, but too far gone to leave them. "I'll have you boys in the Marine hospital tonight," he informed the poor creatures, and sought the master's cabin. Lying on his bed, fully dressed, he found the skipper of the Chesapeake. The man was gaunt and emaciated.

The freebooter of the green-pea trade touched his wet forelock respectfully. "My name is Gibney, sir, an' I hold an unlimited license as first mate of sail or steam. I was passin' up the coast on a good-for-nothin' little bumboat, an' seen you in distress, so me an' a friend swim over to give you the double O. You're in a bad way, sir."

"Two hundred and eighty-seven days from Hamburg, Mr. Gibney. Our vegetables gave out and we drank too much rain water and ate too much fresh fish down in the Doldrums. Our potatoes all went rotten before we were out two months. Naturally, the ship's officers stuck it out longest, but when we drifted in here this morning, I was the only man aboard able to stand up. I crawled up on the to-gallan' fo-castle and let go the starboard anchor. I'd had it cock-billed for three weeks. All I had to do was knock out the stopper."

While Mr. Gibney questioned him and listened avidly to the horrible tale of privation and despair, McGuffey appeared to report a brisk fire under the donkey and to promise steam in forty minutes; also that the Maggie was hoisted to a cable length distant, with her crew digging under the deckload of vegetables for the small boat. "Help yourself to a belayin' pin, Bart, an' knock 'em on the heads if they try to come aboard," Mr. Gibney ordered nonchalantly.

"Do I understand there is a steamer at hand, Mr. Gibney?" the master of the Chesapeake queried.

"There's an excuse for one, sir. The little vegetable freighter Maggie. She'll

"Out of My Cabin or I'll Riddle You," He Barked Feebly.

never be able to tow you in, because she ain't got power enough, an' if she had power enough she ain't got coal enough. Besides, Scraggs, her owner, is a rotten bad article an' before he'll put a rope aboard you he'll tie you up on a contract for a figger that'd make an angel weep. The way your ship lies an' everything, me an' McGuffey can sail her in for you at half the price."

"I can't risk my ship in the hands of two men," the sick captain answered. "She's too valuable and so is her cargo. If this little steamer will tow me in I'll gladly give her my tow-line and let the court settle the bill."

"Not by a million," Mr. Gibney protested. "Beg pardon, sir, but you don't know this here Scraggs like I do. I couldn't think of lettin' him set foot on this deck."

"You couldn't think of it? Well, when did you take command of my ship?"

"You're flotsam an' jetsam, sir, an' practically in the breakers. You're sick, an' for all I know, delirious, so for the sake o' protectin' you, the sick seaman in the fo-castle an' the owners, I'm takin' command."

The master of the Chesapeake reached under his pillow and produced a pistol. "Out of my cabin or I'll riddle you," he barked feebly.

Mr. Gibney departed without a word of protest and proceeded to make his arrangements, regardless of the master's consent. As he and McGuffey busied themselves, laying the leading blocks along the deck, they glanced toward the Maggie and observed Captain Scraggs hurling crates of vegetables overboard in an effort to get at the small boat quickly. "He'll die when the freight claims come in," Mr. McGuffey chorched. "Poor ol' Scraggs!"

When Captain Scraggs came aboard, Mr. Gibney escorted him around to the master's cabin, introduced him, and stood by while they bargained. "The tow will cost you five thousand, Captain," Scraggs began pompously.

"Me an' McGuffey'll sail you in for four," Gibney declared.

"Three thousand," snarled Scraggs. "Sailin' the cheap as dirt at two thousand. As a matter of fact, Scraggs, me an' Mac'll sail her in for nothin' just to skin you out o' the salvage."

"Two thousand dollars is my lowest figure," Scraggs declared. "Take it or leave it, Captain. Under the circumstances, bargaining is useless. Two thousand is my last bid."

The figure Scraggs named was probably one fifth of what the master of the Chesapeake knew a court would award; nevertheless he shook his head. "It's a straight towing job, Captain, and not a salvage proposition at all. A tug would tow me in for two hundred and fifty, but I'll give you five hundred."

Remembering the vegetables he had jettisoned, Scraggs knew he could not afford to accept that price. "I'm through," he bluffed—and his bluff worked.

"Taken, Captain Scraggs. Write out an agreement and I'll sign it."

With the agreement in his pocket, Scraggs, followed by Gibney, left the cabin. "One hundred each to you an' Mac if you'll stay aboard the Chesapeake, steer her, an' help the Maggie out with what sail you can get on her," Scraggs promised.

"Take a long, runnin' jump at yourself, Scraggs, old sorrowful. The best me an' Mac'll do is to help you cock-bill the anchor, an' that'll cost you ten bucks for each of us—in advance." The artful fellow realized that Scraggs knew nothing whatever about a sailing ship and would have to depend upon The Squarehead for the information he required.

"All right. Here's your money," Scraggs replied and handed Mr. Gibney twenty dollars. He and Nels Halvorsen then went forward, got out the steel towing cable, and fastened a light rope to the end of it. The skiff floated off the ship at the end of the painter, so The Squarehead hauled it in, climbed down into the skiff, and made the light rope fast to a thwart; then, with Captain Scraggs paying out the hawser, Nels bent manfully to the oars and started to tow the steel cable back to the Maggie. Half way there, the weight of the cable dragging behind slowed The Squarehead up and eventually stopped him. Exerting all his strength he pulled and pulled, but the sole result of his efforts was to wear himself out, seeing which the Maggie's navigating officer set the little steamer in toward the perspiring Nels, while Captain Scraggs, Gibney, and McGuffey cheered lustily.

Suddenly an oar snapped. Instantly Nels unshipped the remaining oar, sprang to the stern, and attempted, by sculling, to keep the skiff's head up to the waves. But the weight of the cable whirled the little craft around, a wave rolled in over her counter, and half-filled her; the succeeding wave completed the job and rolled the skiff over and The Squarehead was forced to swim back to the Chesapeake. He climbed up the Jacob's ladder to face a storm of abuse from Captain Scraggs. The cable was hauled back aboard with difficulty, owing to the submerged skiff at the end of it. Captain Scraggs and The Squarehead leaned over the Chesapeake's rail and tugged furiously, when the wreck came alongside, but all of their strength was unequal to the task of righting the little craft by hauling up on the light rope attached to her thwart.

"For ten dollars more each me an' Mac'll tail on to that rope an' do our best to right the skiff. After she's righted, I'll bail her out, borrow new oars from this here bark, an' help Nels row back to the Maggie with the cable," Mr. Gibney volunteered. "Cash in advance, as per usual."

"You're a pair of highway robbers, but I'll take you," Scraggs almost wailed, and paid out the money; whereupon Gibney and McGuffey "talked" on to the rope and with raucous cries hauled away. As a result of their efforts, the thwart came away with the rope and the quartet sat down that day with exceeding abruptness on the hard pine deck of the Chesapeake.

"I had an idee that thwart would pull loose," Mr. Gibney remarked. "Well, what're you goin' to do now?"

"I ain't licked yet—not by a jugful," Scraggs snapped. "Halvorsen, haul down that signal halyard from the mizzenmast, take one end of it in your teeth, an' swim back to the Maggie with it. We'll fasten a heavier line to the cable, an' haul the cable aboard with the Maggie's winch."

"You say that so nice, Scraggs, old hopeful, I'm tempted to think you can whistle it, Nels, he's only askin' you to risk your life overboard for nothin'." Taint in the shippin' articles that a seaman's got to do that. If he wants a swimmin' exhibition make him pay for it—through the nose. An' if I was you, I'd find out how much o' this two thousand dollars towage he's goin' to distribute to his crew. Pers'nally I'd get mine in advance."

"Adelbert P. Gibney," Captain Scraggs hissed. "There's such a thing as drivin' a man to distraction. Halvorsen, are you with me?"

"Aye, aye—sixty dollars. Hay bane worth a month's pay for take dat swim."

"You dirty Scowegian ingrate. Well, you don't get no sixty dollars from me. Bear a hand and we'll drop the ship's work boat overboard. I guess you can tow a signal halyard to the Maggie, can't you, Nels?"

Was Forced to Swim Back to the Chesapeake.

Nels could—and did. Within fifteen minutes the Maggie was fast to her prize. "Now we'll cockbill the anchor," quoth Captain Scraggs, so McGuffey reporting sufficient steam in the donkey to turn over the windlass, the anchor was raised and cockbilled, and the Maggie hauled away on the hawser the instant Captain Scraggs signaled his new navigating officer that the hook was free of the bottom.

"The old girl don't seem to be makin' headway in the right direction," McGuffey remarked plaintively, after the Maggie had strained at the hawser for five minutes. Mr. Gibney, standing by with a hammer in his hand, nodded affirmatively, while the skipper of the Chesapeake, whom Mr. Gibney had had the forethought to carry out on deck to watch the operation, glanced apprehensively ashore. Scraggs measured the distance with his eye to the nearest fringe of surf and it was plain that he was worried.

"Captain Scraggs," the skipper of the Chesapeake called feebly, "Mr. Gibney is right. That craft of yours is unable to tow my ship against this wind. You're losing ground, inch by inch, and it will be only a matter of an hour or two, if you hang on to me, before I'll be in the breakers and a total loss. You'll have to get sail on her or let go the anchor until a tug arrives."

"I don't know a thing about a sailin' ship," Scraggs quavered.

"I know it all," Mr. Gibney cut in, "but there ain't money enough in the world to induce me to exercise that knowledge to your profit." He turned to the master of the Chesapeake. "For one hundred dollars each, McGuffey an' I will sail her in for you, sir."

"I'll not take the risk, Mr. Gibney. Captain Scraggs, if you will follow my instructions we'll get some sail on the Chesapeake. Take those lines through the leading blocks to the winch—"

The engineer of the Maggie came up on deck and waved his arms wildly. "Leggo," he howled. "I've blown out two tubes. It'll be all I can do to get home without that tow."

"Jump on that, Scraggs," quoth McGuffey softly and cast his slitten engineer's cap on the deck at Scraggs' feet. The latter's face was ashen as he turned to the skipper of the Chesapeake. "I'm through," he gulped. "I'll have to cast off. Your ship's drivin' on the beach now."

"Oh, say not so, Scraggs," said Mr. Gibney softly, and with a blow of the hammer knocked out the stopper on the windlass and let the anchor go down by the run. "Not this voyage, at least." The Chesapeake rounded with a jerk and Mr. Gibney took Captain Scraggs gently by the arm. "Into the small boat, old rulin', he whispered, "and I'll row you an' The Squarehead back to the Maggie. If she drifts ashore with that load of garden truck, you might as well drown yourself."

Captain Scraggs was beyond words. He suffered himself to be taken back to the Maggie, after which kindly action Mr. Gibney returned to the Chesapeake, climbed aboard, and with the assistance of McGuffey, hauled the work boat up on the deck.

"Now," Mr. Gibney inquired, approaching the skipper of the Chesaapeake, "what'll you give me an' Mac, sir, to sail you in?"

"One thousand dollars," the skipper answered weakly.

"You refused to let us do it for a hundred. Now it'll cost you two thousand, an' I'm lettin' you off cheap at that. Of course, you can take a chance an' wait until word o' your predicament sifts into San Francisco an' a tug comes out for you, but in the meantime the wind may increase an' with the tide at the flood how do you know your anchor won't drag an' pile you up on them rocks to leeward?"

"I'll pay two thousand, Mr. Gibney."

Without further ado, Mr. Gibney went to the master's cabin, wrote out an agreement, carried the skipper aft and got his signature to the contract. Then he tucked the skipper into bed and came dashing out on deck.

"Come here till I introduce you to the jib halyards," he bawled to McGuffey, and they went forward.

With the aid of the winch, they braced the foreyard; then McGuffey ran aft and took the wheel while Mr. Gibney scuttled forward, eased up the compressor on the windlass, and permitted the anchor chain to pay out rapidly. With the hammer, he knocked out the pin at the forty-five fathom shackle and leaving the anchor to go by the board, for it worried him no longer, the bark Chesapeake moved gently off on a west-south-west course that would keep her three points off the land. She had sufficient head sail on now to hold her up.

Mr. Gibney fell upon the main to-gallan'-s'l leads like a demon, carried them through the leading block to the winch head, turned over the winch and sheeted home the main-to-gallan'-s'l. The Chesapeake gathered speed and Mr. Gibney went aft and stood beside Mr. McGuffey, the while he looked aloft and thrilled to the whine of the breeze through the rigging. "This is sailorizin'," he declared. "It sure beats bumboatin'. Here, blast you, Bart. You're spillin' the wind out o' that jib. First thing you know we'll have her in Irons an' then the fat will be in the fire."

He took the wheel from McGuffey. When he was two miles off the beach he brought her up into the wind and made her wheel fast, a spoke to leeward. "Sheet home the fore-to-gallan'-s'l," he howled and dashed forward. "Leggo them buntines an' clewlines, my hearties, an' haul home that sheet."

Luck is with our two adventurers.

SPEEDING IN THE YEAR 1834

Costly Pastime for New York State

Driver, Who Was Fined $10

Twice in a Day.

Speeding is an ancient evil in New York streets. As long ago as 1834 the police had their troubles with "road burners," although, of course, they drove horses then, not motor cars. Here's what a newspaper said about the ancestors of the present day sons of Jehu, one of whom was arrested twice in one day, the New York Sun points out:

"The shameful conduct of the omnibus coachmen, who are continually driving their horses through the streets at the top of their speed, has at last attracted the attention of the proper authorities, and yesterday morning Stephen Colvin, the driver of the Samuel W. Seely (Andrews' Dry Dock Line) was brought to the upper police office and fined $10 for fast driving."

"In the course of the afternoon the same man was brought before Justice Hopson at the lower police office on the complaint of Aid. Fickett for furious driving and racing with the merchant stage, driven by Van Kuren. Colvin was again fined $10, which has been paid by his employer, and he was liberated. Van Kuren was extremely insolent to the magistrate, and not being able to pay the fine of $10, and in default thereof, was committed to the bridewell."

Essentials.

What do "successful" men think made them succeed? What qualities in other men would they think promised an important and useful future? Perhaps the opinions of no group of persons on such matters could be more valued than that of the membership of the American Society of Engineers. Fifteen hundred of these key-men of industry answered a questionnaire on "The Eight Qualities Essential for Success." The voting on a dozen or more qualities, worked out in order of the relative frequency of their selection, resulted in this list being preferred by the engineers: character, judgment, initiative, resourcefulness, ability to handle men, enthusiasm, industry, technical training. From this piece of testimony it would seem to be a question of the "man" first, the "engineer" second.

The Llamas' Devil Dance.

Once, at Darjiling, I saw the Llamas' devil dance: the soul, a white-faced child with eyes unnaturally enlarged, fleeing among a rabble of devils—the evil passions. It fled wildly here and there, and every way was blocked. The child fell on its knees, screaming dumbly—you could see the despair in the starting eyes; but all was drowned in the thunder of Tibetan drums. No mercy—no escape. Horrible! I shall always see the face of the child, hunted down to hell, falling on its knees, and screaming without a sound, when I hear the drum."—L. Adams Beck in the Atlantic Monthly.

Innocents at Home.

SUPERIORITIES OF MEAT

MEAT is the most important source of protein and iron in the human dietary. Meat is an important source of energy-producing nutriment and of phosphorus. Meat contains considerable quantities of fat—and water—soluble and a fair proportion of antiscorbutic vitamins. Meat in the diet adds to the nutritive value of vegetable protein. Meat contributes more to the palatability of the diet than does any other kind of food.

Preparing Thanksgiving Feast

The kitchen has an incense sweet,
And pies bedeck the window seat.
The good things cooking seem to what

Thanksgiving in Verse

The poets of the present and of the past have embodied their gratitude for the blessings of the year in verse. At times the burden of their song has incorporated the time-honored custom by which one day of the year is set apart for the giving of thanks.

Perhaps Thanksgiving recalls to them mother's ingenuity and skill in making pumpkin pies, and so in a quaintly humorous way the poet pays tribute to the pumpkin and the product thereof.

Again the spirit of these November poems embodies a Thanksgiving joy and freedom from sorrow; for health and happiness; for things spiritual and physical.

At any rate, ever since Thanksgiving has been proclaimed a national holiday the poet has found inspiration for his art and by means of his verses has awakened a sympathetic chord in the breasts of many men and women.

Although nearly all of the poems of James Whitcomb Riley contain an essence of this spirit of gratitude with the existing order of things, some of these are specifically devoted to the day itself. Among these the poem entitled "Thanksgiving" is one of the best.

Let us be thankful—not only because Since last our universal thanks were told
We have grown greater in the world's applause,
And fortune's newer smiles surpass the old—

But thankful for all things that come as aims
From out the open hand of Providence,
The winter clouds and storms—the summer
calms—
The sleepless dreads—the drowses of indolence.

Let us be thankful—thankful for the prayers
Whose gracious answers were long,
long delayed,
That they might fall upon us unawares,
And bless us, as in greater need we prayed.

Let us be thankful for the loyal hand
That love held out in welcome to our own.
When love, and only love, could understand
The need of touches we had never known.

Let us be thankful for the longing eyes
That gave their secret to us as they wept,
Yet in return found, with a sweet surprise,
Love's touch upon their lids, and, smiling, slept.

And let us, too, be thankful that the tears
Of sorrow have not all been drained away,
That through them still, for all the coming years,
We may look on the dead face of today.

Will Carleton, the New England poet, strikes the universal note of thanks in his hymn, part of which follows:

We thank Thee, Father, for all that is bright—
The gleam of the day and the stars of the night;
The flowers of our youth and the fruits of our prime,
And the blessings that march down the pathways of time.

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is dear—
The sob of the tempest, the flow of the tear;
For never in blindness and never in vain
Thy mercy permitted a sorrow or pain.

The spirit of unembittered resignation at approaching death is expressed in a poem by Edith M. Thomas on "A Last Thanksgiving."

When it is time for me to go—
Time of the rose—or falling snow—
Or when new winds wake vernal strife,
This to the world I've cherished so—
"I have been thankful for my life."

When night and shade together flow,
When dawn some scene I not yet know,
Let me draw back one fluttering breath,
To say, to all I've loved below,
"I have been thankful—in my death!"

"How John Quit the Farm" is a narrative poem by the Hoosier poet, and combines pathos as well as quaint humor. The son John has gone to the city to get an education and for the time being he is taught by the glamour of city life. But the concluding stanza in which he tells of his return on Thanksgiving day shows that the luster of the city offered him but a fleeting inducement.

And so the summer faded out, and the autumn wore away,
And a keener winter never fetched around
Thanksgiving day!

And as I turned and looked around, some one riz up and bent
And put his arms round Mother's neck,
and laughed in low content.

"It's me," he says—"your fool boy John—come back to shake your hand;
Set down with you, and talk with you,
and make you understand

The object of Thanksgiving day is to take us back of the goods of life to the supreme good. The tendency is to get absorbed in things and forget their spiritual value. Thanksgiving day reminds us of spiritual values.

How dearer yet than all the world is this old home that we
Will spend Thanksgiving in for life—jest
Mother, you and me!"

John Greenleaf Whittier wrote of the pumpkin, and in the poem of that title he says, in part:

Ah, on Thanksgiving day, when from East and from West,
From North and from South come the pilgrim and guest,
When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board
The old broken links of affection restored;
When the care-worn man seeks his mother once more,
And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before;
What moistens the lips and what brightens the eye?
What calls back the past, like the rich pumpkin pie?

Then thanks for the present, none
sweeter nor better
E'er smoked from an oven or circled a platter.
Fainter hands never wrought at pastry
more fine.

Brighter eyes never watched o'er its baking than thine;
And the prayer which my mouth is too
faint to express
Swells my heart that thy shadow may never grow less;
That the days of thy lot may be strengthened below,
And the flame of thy worth, like the pumpkin vine, grow
And thy life be as sweet and its last sunset sky
Golden-tinted and fair as thy own pumpkin pie.

The poem, "For an Autumn Festival," by the same author, is of a more serious and devout nature, as several of the stanzas will testify.

Once more the liberal year laughs out
O'er richer stores than gems of gold;
Once more with harvest song and shout
Is Nature's bloodless triumph told.
Who murmurs at his lot today?
Who scorns his native fruit and bloom
Or sighs for dainties far away,
Beside the bounteous board of home?

And let these altars, wreathed with flowers
And piled with fruits awake again
Thanksgiving for the golden hours,
The early and the latter rain!

One of the simplest and most beautiful of Thanksgiving poems is "We Thank Thee," by Emerson. It runs:
For flowers that bloom about our feet;
For tender grass, so fresh, so sweet;
For song of birds and hum of bees;
For all things fair we hear or see,
Father in heaven, we thank Thee.

For blue of stream and blue of sky;
For pleasant shade of branches high;
For fragrant air and cooling breeze;
For beauty of the blooming trees,
Father in heaven, we thank Thee.

As in most of her poems, a devout religious spirit pervades Phoebe Cary's poem on Thanksgiving. It is an appeal to the grown-ups on this day to make a trip back to their childhood, and is marked by the felicitous simplicity of the writer:

O men, grown sick with toil and care,
Leave for a while the crowded mart.
O women, sinking with despair,
Weary of limb and faint of heart,
Forget your years today and come
As children back to childhood's home.

Following again the winding rills,
Go to the places where you went
When, climbing up the summer hills,
In their green laps you sat content
And softly leaned your head to rest
On Nature's calm and peaceful breast.

Then the old lady of the poem goes on to tell that she has just come from Sarah's, who lives in a sort of a palace in the city, and has creams and salads, made by a French cook, that "cost a fortune." However, things didn't quite suit her at her niece's, and an invitation to an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner suits her well.

How I run on. Well, thank you, neighbor; I see you want to go.
I'm comin' to Thanksgiving; your good old ways I know;
An' my mouth waters, dear old friend,
There's tears in these dim eyes,
For I shall taste the flavor of mother's pumpkin pies.

Another poetess, Mrs. Margaret Sangster, wrote this verse on the
"Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pies":

So you bid me to Thanksgiving. Thank you, neighbor; it is kind
To keep a plain old body like myself as much in mind.
Here I've been sittin' all alone, and a mist before my eyes,
A-thinkin', like a simpleton, on mother's pumpkin pies.

A toast by Ida E. S. Noyes is very appropriate, since it has Thanksgiving for a subject.

For every day of life we're living,
Thanksgiving!
For friends assembled 'round the board
Thanks we're giving.
For every blessing, great and small,
Thanks give we all!

While it was not written especially in reference to our national feast of Thanksgiving, Kents' "Ode to Autumn" is generally considered a poem of the season. The first stanza runs:

Season of mists and yellow fruitfulness
Close bosom friend of the maturing sun Conspiring with him how to load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the run-tuch-aves run.

To bend with apples the moss'd cottage
trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core
To swell the gourd, and plump the haze shells

With a sweet kernel; to set budding more
And still more, later flowers for the bees Until they think warm days will never cease,
For summer has o'erbrimmed their clammy cells.

talks to the points, as the young turkeys are called, and at all times exercises the supervision of a devoted parent over her family.
Turkeys are considered by many the most difficult of fowl to raise. In the early days of their growth they demand considerable attention. The young birds remain with the females until the late autumn, when the cocks separate from the hens and range by themselves. A troop of turkeys marching through the stubble presents a fine sight to the lover of nature. Later on, when the birds appear on the tables at Thanksgiving and Christmas, they amply repay the trouble their care entailed.

Always.

There is always somebody or something to work for.—Le Baron Briggs.

SUFFERED SEVEN LONG YEARS

Finally Relieved by taking
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ravenwood, W. Va.—"For seven long years I suffered from a female trouble and inflammation so that I was not able to do my housework. I consulted several doctors but none seemed to give me relief. I read in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I decided to try it, and before the first bottle was gone I found great relief so I continued using it until I had taken eight bottles. Now I am very well and can do my own housework. I can gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine to suffering women."—Mrs. BERTHA LIERING, R. F. D., Ravenwood, W. Va.

The ordinary day of most housewives is a ceaseless treadmill of washing, cooking, cleaning, mending, sweeping, dusting and caring for little ones. How much harder the tasks when some derangement of the system causes headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness. Every such woman should profit by Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's experience. Remember this, for over forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring health.

Reindeer's Skin Valuable. Not only is the reindeer prized highly for its flesh, but the skins are valuable for glove-making. Tanned with the hair on, they are very light, and robes made from the soft tanned skins with the hair on are for weight probably by far the warmest covering known. These might become extremely useful as automobile robes for winter in colder parts of the country.

A Contradiction. Witness—He looked me straight in the eyes and—Lawyer—There, sir, you've flatly contradicted your former statement.

Witness—How's that?
Lawyer—You said before that he bent his gaze on you. Will you please explain how he could look you straight in the eye with a bent gaze?—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Traveling Hint. If there are bottles to go in your bag or trunk and you fear the corks will come out, heat your sealing wax in a flame and run the melted part around the cork where it meets the glass. Thus it will be held in tightly and only a smart twist is necessary to remove it when you arrive at your destination.

Great Britain has somewhat more than 800,000 motor vehicles.

New Expanding Bullet. A new form of expanding bullet for big-game hunters has been designed. It is for rifles of .30-caliber. It supersedes the old soft-nosed bullets to which there were many objections. In a new bullet, the tip is made of tin-plated gliding metal, and upon impact is forced back into the cover, expanding the point of the bullet, which is slotted in such a manner that it retains its pointed shape until this impact occurs. This is unlike the old soft-nosed bullets which, from their nature, were liable to be deformed by handling before they were loaded into a rifle. The weight of the new bullet is 180 gr., which is generally considered about the best shooting.

DON'T FEAR ASPIRIN IF IT IS GENUINE

Look for Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

To get genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" you must look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on each package and on each tablet.

The "Bayer Cross" means true, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general. Proper and safe directions are in each unbroken "Bayer" package.—Advertisement.

Individualism. You can give other people your advice, but you can not give them your experience. You can give them your remedy, but you can by no means give them its effect upon yourself. Perhaps this is just as well, since each is to live his individual life and make his own best achievement out of it. The man with the ten talents could probably have taken care of those of his fellow-servants as well—then there would have been no loss, but also there would have been no use for the other servants.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP

Alleviates Irritation, Soothes and Heals Throat and Lung Inflammation.

The almost constant irritation of a cough keeps the delicate mucous membrane of the throat and lungs in a congested condition, which Boschée's Syrup gently and quickly soothes and heals. For this reason it has been a favorite household remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis and especially for lung troubles in millions of homes all over the world for the last fifty-five years, enabling the patient to obtain a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectation in the morning. You can buy Boschée's Syrup wherever medicines are sold.—Advertisement.

Resurrection Flower. In Egypt is a plant called the resurrection flower. It is seen as a little ball hanging on a fragile stem, resembling in color and shape a shrunken poppyhead. Sleeping, but not dead, the flowers are aroused by being immersed in water, and then supported in an upright position. Soon the fibers begin to stir. Slowly they unfold, until, with petals thrown back, it becomes a beautiful starry flower, not unlike an aster.

Yolk Pigment. It is reported that a chemist abroad has succeeded in isolating the yellow pigment of the yolk of egg in a crystalline state, and finds that it is closely related to the xanthophyll of leaves. This is regarded as an important scientific discovery. To extract four grains of crude pigment the investigator employed the yolks of no less than 6,000 eggs. The crystallized pigment is known as lutein.

Pleased With Begging Letters. When the old shah of Persia visited England in 1873, some 8,000 begging letters were posted to him during his sojourn. He was much pleased with them and felt highly honored to receive so many letters, each of which he treated as a compliment. He had all of them securely packed into a trunk and dispatched to Persia, where they were deposited in his museum.

Transporting Power of Water. The transporting power of flowing water varies as the sixth power of the velocity. Thus if the velocity of the water is doubled, its transporting power is increased 64 fold. This explains the effect of a river in flood in carrying all things before it.

Suitable For Presents

Ever Welcome Gifts

If a Christmas were to come and go without leaving with us pincushions, pin-holders, garters and other pretty furbelows made of ribbon, it would be remembered with something of disappointment. A heart-shaped pincushion, a small bag for holding pins and a pair of ribbon-covered garters represent a few of many ribbon novelties for the holidays.

Christmas Decorations

One of the easiest ways for dressing up the house at holiday time is to make lamp, candle and electric light shades or lanterns of crepe or tissue paper and tinsel. To make the small lantern pictured two rings of cardboard are covered with plain black or gold paper pasted over them. A length of light green tissue paper is folded along the center, slashed into narrow strips and pasted inside the rings. Under this a length of rose-colored crepe paper narrower than the green is pasted; this causes the strips of green paper to spread and stand out. Silver tinsel hangs from the wire handle at each side.

For the Hostess

Gifts that every woman who entertains will delight in are pictured here and they will be all the more appreciated because they are made by their donor. A set of numbers for card tables is attractive and easy to make. They are cut from white cardboard and have gummed figures in black placed on one side. On this black and white background graceful sprays of gay flowers are painted and the cards are supported by small wire holders.

Bits of Splendor

Plain wide satin ribbon and narrow fancy ribbons, with handsome metallic mounts, are used to make these elegant shopping bags. Ribbons in the richest qualities and most brilliant patterns are chosen for them and they are lined with gay and equally good silks. Besides being bits of the splendor dear to women these bags have the additional value that belongs to a gift made by its donor.

Gay Bungalow Caps

Here is something new in breakfast caps. It is made of gay cretonne and is buttoned up the back so that it may be easily washed and ironed. It is bound with a plain color in chambray and has a narrow band of this material about it. The brim portion may be turned up or down and is shown here turned up at one side and down on the other.

Fairy Powder Puff

Little celluloid kiewpies which may be bought everywhere have been used in many ingenious ways for Christmas gifts. Here is one dressed up like a fairy bride with ruffles of chiffon bound with narrow satin ribbon for a skirt and her head adorned with a braided wreath and veil. She stands in a small bag stuffed with cotton and gathered about her feet and it has a cloth powder puff sewed to it that rests in a glass bowl.

Cookie Hermits

Three eggs, a scant cupful of butter, one and a half cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of chopped raisins, one-half cupful currants, small piece of citron chopped fine, grated rind of one orange, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of allspice and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cream butter and sugar; add well-beaten eggs, spices, a cupful or more of sugar, then the fruit, and one teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water. Now add more flour until the dough is stiff enough to roll. Cut with cookie cutter or thin tumbler and bake in moderate oven.

Time and Temper Saver.

When stitching this silks, net, sheer lawns, etc., on a sewing machine, time, temper and nerves may be saved by laying several strips of newspaper under the part to be stitched. After the stitching is done the paper may be removed.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 20

PAUL BEFORE THE KING.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25:1-26:32.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.—1 Cor. 15:20.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—1 Cor. 15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells How He Came to Obedience.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Before King Agrippa.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Appeal to Caesar.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Courageous Testimony Before a King.

I. Paul Before Festus (25:1-12).

As soon as Festus, the new governor, goes to Jerusalem, he is besieged with accusers against Paul, and they desire that he be brought to Jerusalem for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus refused their request, but agreed to give them an opportunity to accuse Paul if they would go down to Caesarea. They go, but are unable to prove anything against him. Festus, willing to please the Jews, proposes to send him to Jerusalem for trial. For this Paul issues a rebuke to Festus by asserting that he very well knew that he was innocent. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice before Festus, Paul makes use of his right as a Roman citizen, and appeals to Caesar. Paul well knew that to go to Jerusalem meant death, and since Festus was too much of a time-server to release him when he knew that he was innocent, he makes use of the radical step of appealing to Rome as the last resort. Festus seems to have been taken by surprise. His failure to release an innocent man had placed him in an awkward position, for he could give no explanation as to why an innocent man should go to Rome for trial. For a man to appear before Caesar would cast reflection upon Festus. He now consulted his council as to what to do, but since the Roman law gave every man the right of appeal to the emperor, there was nothing left for him to do but to grant his request.

II. Paul Before Agrippa (25:13-26:27).

1. The occasion (25:13-27). This was the visit of Agrippa and Bernice to Festus. Upon their arrival they expressed a desire to hear Paul, whereupon Festus told them of his perplexity; so it was arranged that Paul be brought before them for examination.

2. The defense (25:21-27). (1) The introduction (vv. 1-3). In this he expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who was able to follow his line of argument, for Agrippa was an expert in questions concerning the Jews; and most of all he was now happy in that he could witness to him of the Savior and perhaps lead him into the light of God. (2) In his manner of life (vv. 4-12). This he showed had been in strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. He possessed the same hope—that of a coming Deliverer—and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ, as his zeal would prove. These facts make the change from a persecutor to an ardent advocate all the more remarkable. (3) His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). Jesus Christ appeared to him on the way to Damascus and revealed himself to him. (4) Jesus Christ commissioned him for his work (vv. 16-18). He was sent unto the Gentiles (a); to open their eyes, so awfully blinded; (b) to perform the blessed work of turning them from darkness to light; (c) to turn them from the power of Satan unto God; (d) that they might receive forgiveness of sins; (e) and that they might obtain an inheritance among the saints. (5) His consecration (vv. 19-21). As soon as he received his commission he obeyed. The very vigorous prosecution of his work brought him into conflict with the Jews, for which they sought to kill him. (6) The interruption by Festus (v. 24). Seeing how thoroughly in earnest Paul was, he attempted to account for it by calling him a crank, attributing it to the ravings of an unbalanced mind. (7) Paul's appeal to Agrippa (vv. 25-27). Still maintaining his courtesy, he appealed to his knowledge of the work of Jesus and of the prophets, for they have an intimate connection. He was anxious to have Agrippa act on the knowledge which he had.

III. Agrippa Almost Persuaded (26:28-32).

Whether this answer is a contemptuous sneer or not, it is evident that his soul was unwilling to yield. Paul took Agrippa seriously. Paul's heart longed that Agrippa and all concerned would accept Christ and be saved. He desired that all might have the salvation of Christ, but would spare all the bonds which he bore.

To Love Others.

We must suffer in ourselves before we can truly love others, and we must suffer greatly before we can love wisely. Why it is so we may not be able to tell, unless it be that only thus do we gain a thorough knowledge of ourselves. There is in the heart of man a secret chamber where God has put all humanity and Himself; touch the door with the hand of suffering and it flies open, and man finds himself one with all others, and God Himself in the midst of them.—Theodore T. Munger.

The Lord Doth Everything. He who hath made the sun and the moon, He who hath given affection in the hearts of parents, He who hath bestowed compassion upon the great souls, He who hath brought unselfish love and devotion in the hearts of saints and sages, doth everything for the good of His world.—Rababrisina.

PEPTO-MANGAN KEEPS BLOOD PURE

Growing Children Need Plenty of Red Cells in Blood.

When the young body is growing, children frequently experience weakness. Girls and boys sometimes play too hard and overtax their systems. They become pale, weak, and sickly. They lose their appetites, become languid, and are not able to make progress in school work. "Growing too fast" is often true. It is most important to keep the blood of growing girls and boys in a healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan keeps the blood pure. The red cells in the blood are increased. They carry life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body, and wholesome youthfulness blooms again in clear complexions, bright eyes and buoyant spirits. Sold both in liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package. Advertisement.

Beginner's Luck.

An ardent angler took a friend fishing. The friend knew nothing about the gentle art, but was set up with all the necessary tackle, and a nice, comfortable seat on the bank.

The experienced hand started fishing a few yards higher up the stream. Presently the novice said: "How much do those red things cost?"

"I suppose you mean the float?" said the angler. "That only costs about twopenny."

"Well, I owe you twopenny," said the novice. "The one you lent me has sunk."—London Tit-Bits.

In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! Bath Night.

Pat was helping the gardener on a gentleman's place and, observing a shallow stone basin containing water, he inquired what it was for.

"That," said the gardener, "is a bird bath."

"Don't be foolin' me," grinned Pat.

"What is it?"

"A bird bath, I tell you. Why do you doubt it?"

"Because I don't believe there's a bird alive that can tell Saturday night from any other."—Boston Transcript.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows marvellous results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention results, as many of my customers testify. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement.

Weak and Worn?

Has summer left you dull, tired; all worn out? Do you have constant backache, with headaches, dizzy spells, sharp, shooting pains, or annoying kidney irregularities? Influenza and grip epidemics have left thousands with weak kidneys and failing strength. Don't wait until serious kidney trouble develops. Help the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Different medicines did me no good and I wasn't until I used Doan's Kidney Pills that I was helped. Several boxes of Doan's cured me."

Makes a Discovery.

A four-year-old boy visiting in Columbus last week had but little experience in the country, having lived all of his life in a large city. His knowledge of plants was limited to those he had seen in parks and in the very small yards in city homes. He was driving in the country with relatives, and the machine passed a field overrun with bristly, tall grass with a brushlike tip. The youngster regarded the grass with bulging eyes, and finally he cried, excitedly, "Oh, mother, mother, here is the place where the wooly worms grow."—Inclanap's News.

FOOTBALL SEASON CLOSES

University of Delaware football season will end to-day when the Blue and Gold will play their old rivals the Pennsylvania Military College eleven of Chester, Pa., on Harlan Field, Wilmington. This game was transferred to Wilmington because of a demand on the part of a large number of alumni and friends of the university that one of the home games be played in Wilmington. With two bands on hand and the prospects of one if not the largest crowd that has ever watched a Delaware team play the day promises to be a great occasion for the Blue and Gold.

The football season has been an in and out one from the Delaware standpoint. The team started out by losing the first three games played to Penn, Muhlenburg and Johns Hopkins. About this time Coach Derby made some changes on the team that has a wonderful effect and produced a winning combination. The next four games with New York "Aggies," Haverford, Washington and Western Maryland were all victories while the eighth game with Lafayette last Saturday was another defeat. The team has now won four and lost four and is anxious to capture the P. M. C. contest to break ahead of the season in the number of wins. The addition of Jackson a freshman from Dover to the backfield has greatly strengthened Delaware on offense.

Coach Shipley is already working with the basketball candidates although the inter-collegiate season will not open at Newark until after the first of the year. A squad of about 50 candidates are out for the team many of them being Freshmen.

While the basketball schedule is not entirely completed it will be one of the hardest that Delaware team has ever undertaken. Games have been arranged with both the Army and Navy teams and also with Penn and Princeton, all four to be played away. Some of the home games will be with Swarthmore, New York "Aggies," St. John's of Annapolis, Muhlenburg and Washington College. The Delaware season will open at home on January 12 with Albright as opponents. The first game will be with West Point at West Point on January 7.

Dr. Walter Hulihan president of the University of Delaware, Dean Charles A. McCue, director of the Experimental Station and Professor George L. Schuster, agronomist have returned to the University from New Orleans, where they all three attended a convention of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and where Dr. Hulihan also attended a meeting of the Presidents of Universities. University of Delaware was admitted to membership in the latter association which puts it on an equal footing with the state universities throughout the country.

Miss Marian Hatfield of Wilmington, a student at the Women's College, University of Delaware and also president of the Student Government Association of the college, represented the college as a delegate early this week at a Disarmament Convention of University and Colleges held at Chicago, Ill.

Miss Ruth Anne Russell, a student at the Women's College from Milford also represented Y. W. C. A. of the college at the annual under-graduate field representation conference held in Philadelphia.

"DECLASSEE"

No announcement in the course of the theatrical season is more welcomed than that of the coming of Ethel Barrymore. No player holds quite the same firm place in the esteem of American playgoers. Additional importance and interest, however, attaches to the news of Miss Barrymore's coming to the Playhouse, the first half of the coming week, since she will be seen here in "Declassee," the play by Zoe Akins in which her success, little less than tumultuous, has become a fact of important theatrical history. For one entire season, from October of one year to June of the next, New York theatre-goers crowded the Empire Theatre to witness Miss Barrymore's magnificent performance in Miss Akins' play, and each presentation during those hundreds of nights was the occasion for a series of ovations unique in the history of the American stage. Scenes following the memorable first performance, when conservative New York playgoers remained in the theatre to cheer the actress and only left when the lights had been dimmed, became nightly occurrences.

In "Declassee," Miss Akins has fitted Miss Barrymore with one of the most splendid roles of her career and one of the kind in which her loyal following loves best to see her. She is Lady Helen Haden, a young Englishwoman of aristocratic birth and environment to whom, through no fault of her own save an amusing recklessness, unhappy circumstances bring matrimonial disaster. Adrift from her accustomed surroundings Lady Helen is seen next in New York, embarked upon a social career at once precarious and amusing. The center of a gay group of unusual, inconsequential worldlings, and with happiness seemingly almost within her grasp, her adventures come to a close in a final note of gripping, pathetic tragedy.

The Charles Frohman Company has surrounded Miss Barrymore with a most distinguished and capable company, including Edward Emery, often identified with earlier productions in which Miss Barrymore appeared, Henry Daniell, Philip Lord, Cyril Delevanti, Charles Wellesley, Hubbard Kirkpatrick, Alfred Hesse, W. G. Leith, Edward Le Hay, Irby Marshall, Virginia Bennett, Jane West, Mary R. De Gabrielle, Elaine, Ida E. Esau, and numerous others. Needless to say has been the good taste and detail marking many present-

PROCLAMATION!

STATE OF DELAWARE
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

The President has summoned the nation "to a day of devotion, of thanksgiving for blessings bestowed, and of prayer for guidance in modes of life that may deserve continuance of divine favor."

It is proper that the Governor should follow the good example of the President and the custom long prevailing, and call to the attention of the people of Delaware the special blessings they enjoyed and the special reasons for setting aside one day of their busy life for the distinct purpose of giving thanks to a Divine Providence.

Ours has been for many years one of the most favored states in the Union. No people in the Nation is blessed with a more fertile soil and, usually, with more bountiful crops. Our aspirations for the best roads and the best public schools are being realized. No people is freer from the destructive elements that bring distress. None is blessed with more effective religious and educational organizations; no ministers of the Gospel and no teachers anywhere are striving more zealously than those among us who are trying to persuade us to lead a proper life.

Our prosperity in the years immediately preceding has been such as to cause some less thoughtful persons to depend more upon their own strength and their own ability, and less upon Divine Providence; many have substituted extravagant habits for lessons in economy, and this is undesirable.

The difference in conditions this year, as compared with the prosperous years immediately preceding, has taught us the unwisdom of all this and has emphasized the importance of the simple life, the religious life, the unselfish life, the importance of educating the youth, and the importance of building for the future.

It is more desirable that we should give thanks for these things than to give thanks for what we commonly call prosperity, for these things make for the permanent good of the State and its people.

Again, let us be thankful that our young men are once more around their own firesides. Let us invoke a special blessing for the families of those who lost their lives in bearing the State's burden when she was called upon by the Nation; let us join the people of the whole world in a prayer that no future generation shall be called upon to perform a like service and make a like sacrifice.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Denney, Governor of the State of Delaware, do hereby designate

THURSDAY
NOVEMBER, TWENTY-FOUR

as
and do call upon the people of Delaware to lay aside their daily work and to gather in their homes and around their altars and give thanks for the great favors that have been bestowed upon them and pray for a continuance of divine blessings.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I, William D. Denney, Governor of the State of Delaware, have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal to be affixed at Dover, this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty one and in the year of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-sixth.

By the Governor: WM. D. DENNEY.

A. R. BENSON,
Secretary of State.

Pepto-Mangan Keeps Blood Pure

Growing Children Need Plenty of Red Cells in Blood

When the young body is growing, children frequently experience weakness. Girls and boys sometimes play too hard and over-tax their systems. They become pale, weak, and sickly. They lose their appetites, become languid, and are not able to make progress in school work. "Growing too fast" is often true. It is most important to keep the blood of growing girls and boys in a healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan keeps the blood pure. The red cells in the blood are increased. They carry life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body, and wholesome youthfulness blooms again in clear, complexions, bright eyes and buoyant spirits. Sold both in liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package. Advertisement.

We are happy to be able thus to furnish the means for our patrons to gratify their Holiday tastes by fitting themselves out with all they need to make the Thanksgiving Day every way enjoyable, and we cordially invite them to call at our Store for this purpose.

Among our many reduced articles we mention but one—LADIES' WINTER HATS—for One-half! Besides, we have a full line of Suits, Coats, Furs, Jersey Dresses, and a host of other articles that will be very welcome for the coming cold season.

We should all be very grateful to God for His many mercies to us as a Nation and as individuals. If anyone has a right to complain it is the Farmer upon whom has largely come the double misfortune of a failure of both crop and price. Yet when we contemplate the awful world-wide ruin and famine in other lands that have followed in the wake of War, our complaints should be turned into thankfulness that our lot is so much happier than that of those unfortunate peoples.
